EMMA BERTAGNOLE, being first duly sworn deposes and says that she is the sister of Leo M. Bertagnole, now deceased, and is 89 years of age; that her father and later her brothers were engaged in the sheep business for many years beginning about 1914 and had their headquarters in Salt Lake Valley but grazed their sheep during the summer in the Wasatch range of mountains east of Salt Lake City. The herds of sheep varied in numbers but averaged about 6,000 ewes.

Your affiant at times accompanied the herds of sheep during summer grazing and she recalls that from about the year 1900 until recent times the sheep grazed at the head of the Mountain Dell Canyon in Salt Lake County and watered at a spring known as Box Spring in Section 36, Township 2 North, Range 2 East at the head of Box Spring Hollow, a side canyon from Mountain Dell Canyon and also satered at four other unnamed springs in Sections 35, Township 2 North, Range 2 East and in Section 2, Township 1 North, Range 1 East, at the head of the Mountain Dell Canyon. Affiant further states the springs were banked up with earth to form ponds and in some instances were collected in wooden troughs. The area surrounding the springs appeared to have been used for many years for watering sheep and she was told and understood that the springs had been used since prior to the year 1900 for watering sheep and other livestock.
