On April 5, 1991 the Utah State Engineer submitted a proposed order to the court which would allow for regulation and distribution of water in the above-entitled case until April 30, 1991. The court then received written objections from Mr. Guy Taylor and from Uintah Basin Irrigation Company. As the court was considering the matter it was advised on April 16, 1991 by counsel for Uintah Basin Irrigation Company that its objection was being withdrawn.

After consideration of the fact that distribution of water in the early part of the water season was critical and with provisions being made for an expeditious hearing on any objections, the court has issued the temporary order. That order specifically states that it is without prejudice to the final determination of any parties water rights. There having
