Dear Sir:

In regards to the Hopkins Slough, in the past several years we have had problems with unknown persons diverting the water from the designated area to the Benson, Utah area.

For the past several years, the dam has been secured by a paddlock, which at that time seemed to resolve the problem. In the fall of 1990, someone broke the paddlock, raised the headgate, and broke the rod. The headgate was repaired in the Spring of 1991 and harrassment continued with the same problem of someone diverting the water back to the Benson area. In July 8, 1991, the headgate was again broken, and the water again diverted back to Benson.

There were not any pictures taken of the damaged headgate, however, there are many persons who have witnessed the damaged headgate.

Sincerely,

R&J Farms
Ralph Meikle
